Ambassador Wilson Still in Washington and Now Has Nothing to Say

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16. Substantial peace has been achieved, in the judgment of the administration, by John Lind in the discharge of his delicate mission to Mexico. They feel that the American embassy's adviser has made a breach in the wall which theoretically had been offered by the Mexican government to obstruct his advancement. The president has been made it understood to be only of a preliminary character and will be followed by others, better out more in detail the object which the American administration had in mind in dispatching him to Mexico City.

The delivery of these supplementary communications, either orally or in writing, will depend entirely upon the reception accorded the American government. This is now under consideration. This is now under consideration. This is now under consideration.

Senator Lodge had a long talk with Secretary Bryan today about Mexican affairs. In view of his formal declaration in the senate of his purpose to stand squarely behind the president.

KILLING OF MINE
WORKER FIRES MEN

Gerald Lippiatt, Organizer,
Shot Down in Tripitad
Streets by Detective

TRINIDAD, Colo., Aug. 16. Gerald Lippiatt, a member of the United Mine Workers of America, and former organizer in the northern Colorado coal fields, was shot and almost instantly killed tonight by C. W. Barker, a Baldwin Falls operative, in a pistol duel on one of the prominent streets of Trinidad. Just as Lippiatt sank to the street, he fired at Barker and wounded him through the left leg. Barker, another Baldwin Falls operative, was implicated in the fight, and has been arrested.

Petitions Lacking Sufficient Number of Signatures in Several Counties

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 16. When time for filing nomination papers closed today, there was considerable doubt as to whether Governor Fox could be a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination at the primaries next week. It was necessary for petitions containing at least 250 names each in four counties to be filed by 10 o'clock today.

TEMPLARS DRILL

Englewood Drill Team Makes Progress; Will Attend
in Body

Marching to the accompaniment of rolling drums and blaring bugles, the 20 men making up the drill corps of Englewood commandery No. 53, Chicago, Knights Templar, went through a score of more intricate drill formations early last evening in front of the Aracua hotel, before a crowd of several thousand enthusiastic spectators.

After a half hour's drilling on Platte avenue, the commandery, 100 strong, marched down Tejon street to Pikea Peak avenue, thence to a point in front of The Gazette, where the crack drill corps, which took second prize at the Denver convence, again went through several maneuvers. The drum corps played several selections for The Gazette.

Although no formal announcement had been made of the exhibition drill, long before the bell-rung, hundreds had gathered in front of the Aracua hotel to witness it. A short concert by the drum corps preceded the drill, and when the commandery marched from the hotel, where it is quartered, several thousand people thronged North park and Tejon street and Platte avenue.

Marching as one, the 8th Knights, for a half hour, went through the various formations which all but won for them first prize at the Denver convence. At the conclusion of each maneuver, the commandery would shut up camp, after which, and while the grandstand, finally turned down again, the drill was in full swing.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 16. An armed truce over Sunday is the present situation in the fight for the governorship of New York state. Both Governor Sulzer and Lieutenant Governor Glynn, acting governor, signed official letters during the day. Apart from this, the only skirmish was the issuing by Governor Sulzer of a reply to Mr. Glynn's declaration of the suggestion that their differences be taken at once to court. Governor Sulzer declares this declaration pointing out that it is probably unhelpful to trouble and litigation. The purpose of the suggestion, he stated, was to avoid the spectacle of two persons claiming to be governor of this great state at the same time.

17 WESTERN ROADS
ASKING MORE PAY
FOR HAULING MAIL

Declare Parcel Post Service
Causes Loss; Demand
Fair Dealing

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16. The 17 western railroads, against a telegram today to Postmaster General Hughes asking that a permanent increase in the compensation of the roads for hauling mail be granted, have asked the government to consider the question of the value of the parcel post service. The telegram was sent as the result of investigation conducted by a committee appointed by the railroads. The telegram says:

The undersigned are prompted respectfully to ask you to consider whether the United States government is really dealing fairly with the railroads of the country as to the matter of pay in connection with the introduction and extension of parcel post service.

The testimony of the postoffice department before the senate committee, July 26, showed that the first three months' business of the department after the installation of the parcel post had shown a gross increase in postal revenue of 14.24 per cent, of which at least 8.5 per cent was attributed to the new parcel post business.

Receipts Greatly Boosted.
On the basis of this statement the government must have collected not less than $11,266,400 in revenue from the parcel post for the first six months, beginning January 1.

KANSAS DROUGHT
AT LAST BROKEN

RAINFALL IS GENERAL
OVER STATE

People Rush Into Streets to Get Soaking; Man With Umbrella Ostracized

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 16. The end of the longest, hottest and most costly drought in the history of Kansas is in sight, according to reports received here tonight. Rain of some consequence fell over a considerable portion of the state today, and in many places continued tonight. Government weather forecasters said the rainfall probably indicated that the drought was broken. Good showers were general over Missouri and northern Oklahoma.

The precipitation in Kansas ranged from light showers to one-half inch, the heaviest rains being in the southern part of the state. An inch of rain fell in the district between Emporia and Kansas City, and between Lawrence and Topeka the downpour measured three-quarters of an inch. A heavy rain visited the territory around Houghton and good showers were reported east of Leavenworth. Rain was general over the eastern part of the state.

Rain has not fallen for 31 days around Concordia. The mercury climbed above the 100 mark on 25 different days. In many places where the rain fell the drought has been continuing for nine weeks. Both in the cities and over the country, the advantage of being rained on was taken with an umbrella was ostracized. A drop in the temperature was experienced in all places where the rain fell.

Lobby Investigators Follow

McDermott's Activities

Witness Forgets Details
Former House Page Admits Connections With the New

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16. The house lobby investigators entered their attention today on the statement of J. H. McMichael, one time chief page of the house, that Representative James T. McDermott of Chicago had received about $1,000 for efforts to defeat a bill affecting local pawnbrokers and loan sharks. After more than five hours of hard work, the committee was not much nearer a definite conclusion about the story than it was when McMichael made his first statement.

The committee chief of staff, James H. McMichael, told the committee that McDermott had told him that he had about $1,000 in the loan shark matter and stood in his story under severe cross-examination by James E. Ross, Smith, attorney for McDermott, former Washington pawnbroker, who quit business when this bill became law, gave the committee no definite information to connect McDermott with any such fund or to disclose that the pawnbrokers ever raised any such amount for any purpose. As yet, a statement of the McDermott bill is not published, so it is hard to see what the committee is after in its questioning of the story of a $1,000 and no bill.

McMichael's story was that he had a lack of memory about a $1,000 bill, saying the bill was $1,000 and was not a bill at all. He said he had no memory of the bill, but he had a memory of the $1,000. He said he had no memory of the bill, but he had a memory of the $1,000.

got a letter from the collector, but no information from the witness. Hernandez denied that $3,500 was raised for the defendant.

$3,500 Not Enough, He Says.

Thirty-five hundred dollars never defrayed the cost, he said. "You might defeat with $40,000 or $50,000." When the lawyer asked Hernandez if he could defeat the case with $3,500, he said he could not. He said he could not. He said he could not.

"We didn't do anything rash," he admitted frequently. Hernandez denied he had talked with Starnes or Hiden. Starnes, in the testimony he was to give the committee.

Immanuel Aronson, the second ex-pawbroker, said he contributed nothing to the fund to defeat the bill, although he had been approached by the bill who had put up money.

"I told Hernandez I would contribute if he had put up with the pawn-brokers' earnings from 1910 to 1912," he said.

"You were willing to go in on a sort of insurance," suggested Representative Starnes.

"Yes, sir," Hernandez replied. "I was not out anything," he declared.

Although Hernandez swore that to the best of his recollection the activities of the three did not begin in 1911, Starnes thought he had been approached in that year. He had no idea, he said, of what money was raised or how it was spent.

At Hernandez's testimony, the other brokers are under suspicion and will testify next week.

At the morning session of the committee, Mr. Michael continued his story.

"20 Years a House Employee."
Mr. Michael testified before the house committee that he was paid by the New York World, which printed the original "Mulligan" charges.

Mr. Michael testified that he was paid under an agreement to write a story about "Twenty Years a House Employee," after the lobby investigator was over.

Laundering the Ladies' Dainty Garments

—such as shirt waists, skirts, lingerie, etc.—is a part of our work that we give more than ordinary care and attention.

Your dainty garments are carefully washed with Ivory Soap, are starched to just the proper degree to please you, and are as nicely ironed that they really look new.

We deliver the garments of this nature in stiff pasteboard boxes. This is to prevent the garments from being mused by handling, or mashed out of shape by accident.

You'll like the work.

STALLS PICNIC

—request the night of Thursday, August 28, at the Antlers for the visiting foreign.

The dance program, decorated with the menu card, will be "Laid in" as a gift of the Antlers. Two hundred tickets to the banquet will be sold without difficulty. The committee now thinks. One hundred others will be reserved for the governors and their families.

Food to Be Served

In order to have sufficient food for the banquet, the elk will be brought in and hung up next week to season. The trout will be caught the day before, and the fruit and cantaloupes will be ordered and shipped at the last moment.

Care for the auto trip down the convict-built road toward Canon City have already been secured. About 25 machines, the best obtainable in the city, will be used. Tuesday evening there is to be a reception at the Antlers followed by the ball and Thursday afternoon the governors view the polo matches at Broadmoor.

The business sessions of the conference will be held in the Antlers ball room, which will be beautifully decorated with flags, flowers and evergreens. Arrangements are being made to accommodate a limited audience in the ball room also.

Choice Elk Killed.

The big elk on the Stripp ranch which W. H. Big had been fattening for the governors was found dead yesterday.

FIERCE ENGAGEMENTS NEAR MEXICO CITY

Federals Are Victorious, Driving Back the Rebel Forces

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16.—There are engagements between rebel followers of General Zapata and government troops were fought today along a line which extended for three quarters of the distance about the Mexican capital.

One fight was just beyond Guadalupe, a small town two and a half miles outside of Mexico City, in which 200 rebels were killed. Another occurred at Atlixco, a roadside town, the killing of 15 rebels. The third engagement occurred near Atlixco, but the losses there were not given.

The government forces are driving the rebels back. Other fights, one to the northwest and one to the south-east of the capital are reported.

In the battle near Atlixco, a rebel force numbering more than a thousand men stood off a greatly inferior force under Captain Pedro Obieta, a son of General Obieta, the federal commander at Guaymas. Captain Obieta was killed and dispatched a small corps to ammunition. The escort and the ammunition were captured, but Captain Obieta cut his way out and succeeded in capturing the ammunition.

Gambon Makes Statement.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16.—Frederico Gambon, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, tonight gave out the first statement made by any Mexican official regarding the message sent to Provisional President Huerta by President Wilson through his personal representative, ex-Governor John Lind.

The foreign minister said the Mexican government would give consideration to the communication and after fully discussing it would make reply. This procedure is contrary to the opinion held here generally last week of the Mexican government's attitude.

FEDERAL ESCORT TRAINS TO JUAREZ

Twenty Americans Arrive From Interior of the Rattles Republic

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 14.—Eight trains under federal military escort of 2,000 men, arrived by Colorado River, Mandilla and Alberto Terreros, reached Juarez this evening. Twenty Americans, including 11 children, came on one train. The federals brought three cannon and a number of rapid fire guns for defense against possible constitutionalist attack. The trains were six days on the road from Chihuahua. Three of them were empty cars to be loaded with provisions for Chihuahua City. Each visit of Colonel Terreros to this city means purchases amounting to approximately $100,000. The Chihuahua division of the Mexican National railway in the only railroad operating in the state capital for the last three months.

Neither Side Wins.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., Aug. 16.—According to reports received at Eagle Pass, constitutionalist headquarters, the federal and constitutionalist forces, exhausted after two days of desperate fighting at Rodriguez, Mex., ceased hostilities today with neither side having a decided advantage. It is reported both sides lost heavily. Ammunition and supplies were sent to the constitutionalists this evening aboard a special train which is expected to return with the wounded.

Wilson Still in Washington.

Henry Lane Wilson, the titular ambassador to Mexico, remains in Washington, still undecided as to his future moves. Mr. Wilson today also was reflecting upon the communication which Secretary Bryan dispatched to Ambassador Page in London regarding his comment on the statement attributed to the British foreign office. Whether he will make any further criticism probably will depend upon Great Britain's answer to Secretary Bryan's inquiry which probably will be delivered until Monday or Tuesday.

FATE OF EXPRESS COMPANIES DOOMED

Recent Parcel Post Order May Mean End of That Kind of Transportation

By SIDNEY EPESEY.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The fate of the express companies is now in the hands of the post office. The parcel post order, which is now being issued by the post office, is a direct challenge to the express companies. It is a direct challenge to the express companies, which have been in the business of transporting parcels for many years. ### Glands and Veins Enlarge From Poisoned Blood Operation Fails To Get At Source of Malady. Here's the Remedy.

Nothing But S. S. Can Overcome Such Afflictions as These.
An astonishing record of serious blood poisoning is daily brought to our attention. Enlarged lymphatic glands, swellings in the neck, arms and legs, are the result of some poisonous substance collected in the glands or stagnating in the veins to undermine the entire system or break out in chronic sores. And if not all of these things get under the skin, could be avoided with the S. S. Can Ointment, which is a powerful purifier of the blood and a most effective remedy for all such ailments. It is a most effective remedy for all such ailments. It is a most effective remedy for all such ailments. It is a most effective remedy for all such ailments.

FINAL SALE

In the past 30 days we have disposed of thousands of dollars' worth of our regular stock of summer goods as well as thousands of dollars' worth of special purchases, all at prices that have made this store the shopping center of the Pikes Peak region for those who appreciate genuine bargains in strictly first class merchandise. The result has been by far the greatest business we have ever enjoyed, and now comes the great "Final Sale" the final cleanup of all summer lines. Without regard to cost, but with a determination to quickly dispose of all remaining spring and summer apparel, we have gathered all this season's wool suits, lingerie dresses, silk dresses, serge dresses, etc., into four big lots, at 2.75, 4.75, 6.75 and 9.75 each, which prices are only a fraction of the original cost, and will not in any case cover the price of materials alone. Every woman who has a place for one or more garments will attend this sale, an event where a $5.00 bill will take the place of $20.00.

FINAL SALE $2.75
FINAL SALE $4.75
FINAL SALE $6.75
FINAL SALE $9.75

These four lots include values in suits and dresses ranging up to $25, $30 and $35, in many instances these $25 to $35 garments being found in lower-priced lots. Our determination to dispose of everything this sale induces us to make these radical prices.

The few spring and summer dresses and suits not included in these lots and all summer garments ranging $40, $45, $50 and upwards, on sale at half price.

Wilbur Hats

In a great Final Sale this week, at prices that would not buy the shapes alone to say nothing of the trimmings and work--

FINAL SALE $1.75 each for Hats originally sold up to 5. 6 and $7.50 each
FINAL SALE $3.50 each for Hats originally sold up to 10, 12 and $15 each
FINAL SALE $5.00 each for Hats originally sold up to 18, 20, 25 and $35 each

See Our Store Front Today

Please Note That we will have additional help for this Sale and as far as possible wait upon patrons in regular order, but owing to the immense volume of business these ridiculously low prices will create, it will be impossible for us to handle the work in our alteration department, so we are obliged to announce "not taken for alterations." Also that we will not buy aside, send on approval or exchange goods mentioned in this announcement. We make these rules strictly for the benefit of the hundreds of women who will be here in person to select what they may need.

"GETS-IT" Chases Corns Alright

Easy As One, Two, Three; No Fuss No Pain, by Using "GETS-IT"

Just take two seconds to put a little "GETS-IT" on that corn. That corn is "done for" as sure as the sun rises. The corn shrivels up, vanishes. That's

"We Can Dance All Night and Our Corns Won't Hurt. We Both Use 'GETS-IT'—It Gets Corns Every Time, Dead Sure!"

the surprise you get by using this new-plan corn cure. There's nothing to stick to the stocking or sock; your corn pains stop. You're saved the bother of applying plasters that make the corn bulge out from the shoe. You're saved the pain of eating into the flesh with "pulls," no more fussing with bandages. You don't have to help by picking and dragging out your corns, or cutting with knives or razors. "GETS-IT" is safe, painless, stops pain, never hurts healthy flesh, it is guaranteed. Try it on warts, calluses and bunions, too.

"GETS-IT" is sold at all drugstores at 25 cents a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Deaths and Funerals

ARMENTROUT FUNERAL TODAY

The body of A. Armentrout, who died Friday afternoon, will lie in state from 1 to 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Masonic temple. ## Hooray! Blood Free of Impurities Eczema Gone! Acne, Tetter, Rash, Pimples, Carbuncles, Boils, Finitish!

The under layer of skin is a fine network of tiny blood vessels in which the famous blood remedy, S. S. S., works with remarkable activity. This is why S. S. S. is the best blood purifier. There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which peculiarly stimulates cellular or glandular activity to select from the blood the nutrition required for healthy tissue, and the cause of disease is just as constantly being removed, as it is being added. Hence, S. S. S. is a more fully explained in a book on skin troubles sent by Dr. J. C. Swift, Spec. Co., 120 Swift Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. Get a bottle to-day and banish all skin afflictions.

Colorado's Art Pottery

Probably the point of interest most attractive to those of an artistic nature is the "Pots & Planters" department at Van Hieggle Pottery, Inc.,pany. This is where the well-known Van Hieggle Art Pottery is designed and made, and is fully equipped with all the latest machinery and tools for pottery making. The Van Hieggle Pottery is modeled from the peculiarly beautiful clay which are found in the neighborhood of Colorado Springs, and Colorado's beautiful wild flowers form some of the chief decorations. Van Hieggle Pottery, is especially noted for an individuality of design which was discovered by Mr. Artus Van Hieggle in 1922 and was immediately recognized by the master hand in pottery. Tourists and visitors to the Pike's Peak region are invited to visit the Van Hieggle Pottery, where they may learn how the crude, rough clay taken from the ground is moulded and colored into the uniquely artistic forms which characterize this product of the Centennial state. They may view it at the Van Hieggle Pottery, located at 1060 North Tejon Street, between Broadway and Lincoln Streets, or at the Van Hieggle Pottery Show Room, 1070 Broadway, Whitney & Greenwood Opera House Block, North Tejon Street.

IGNACE PADERWSKI
PARIS, SAUR 18.—The beautiful chateau of M. and Mme. Paderewski always was the center of charming hospitality, was the scene a short time ago of one of the latest and most brilliant gatherings that ever took place in the home of the famous pianist. The occasion was the celebration of Paderewski's birthday and there was a stable gathering which included Dr.
and Mrs. David Jayne Hill. There were so a number of the leading musicians of Europe, and Paderewski is never so happy as when his house is filled by a prominent man and woman of his own kind. It is understood that they came to make themselves absolutely acquainted with the occasion of the birthday celebration, they certainly enjoyed each other. One of the diversions was the playing of ragtime by men and women whose names are known all over the civilized globe. They even went so far as to render Brahms' and their masterpieces in ragtime, to the enormous delight of all present, including the host who indeed participated in the fun and demonstrated himself a ragtime player before he was suggested with.
In the course of a conversation with Dr. Hill Paderewski took occasion to express his admiration of America and Americans and to state that he looked forward to his next American tour with great expectations of pleasure.

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING FOR?

A PROPOSITION THAT ENRICHES HAPPINESS, WEALTH AND COMFORT?

If you are in Colorado, in the place, WHY? Because it is the best locality for cattle business in the United States, everything considered—water, little feed is required. I have a tract of 4,500 acres near Colorado Springs, grass knee high, abundance of water, improvements modern and worth $10,000. One-half hour's ride from Springs with auto. The beauty of this investment is you can control the entire tract by buying less than the number of acres. It's subdivided and is worth much more than it can be bought for. Inside of three years it will triple its value. It's a stock man's paradise. It will be sold to the first man with money, who is a judge of lands and stock as they are.

I have a number of 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, 80, 90, 100, 120, 150, 200, 300, 400, 500, 600, 700, 800, 900, 1,000, 1,200, 1,500, 2,000, 3,000, 4,000, 5,000, 6,000, 7,000, 8,000, 9,000, 10,000, Taking a revolver from the dresser drawer, he opened his door into the long hall, where small details stood out suddenly in his overwrought mind—the flapping of a filmy curtain in the soft wind; the wheezing cough of old "Necser" Perrin; as he turned in his unsuspecting sleep; the pale line of light under Hope's door; the cautious rustle and stir in the room below.

Light-ehod. Faron slipped down the long stairway into the wide courtyard. The moonlight streamed from a colored window high up, and from glass doors opening into front and rear gardens. Night voices whistled in the street; brick arches, opposite the street light, marking the alley. A closed library door, toward the right, as eyes lifted, marked distance there. The night air was a shadowy red, and the walls, a faded figure of Sallustiana, wearing only a little hair, a young woman, the sun in the light, white on the white.

The thwarted man glared tensely at the shining weapon and then at Faron's calm face. "It's none of your business, anyway, Sid," he breathed heavily, closing the safe-door with shaking hands; "and it's mighty little of you to butt in; but of course you don't care—you'd as lief see me behind the bars as not."

"Would I, Carl?" reminded Faron; "remember that in less than a week you will be my brother, too!"

A sudden quivering came upon the younger man. "Yes, I know," he whispered, dropping into a chair and laying his face in his hands—"a thief or a prison-bird for a brother; but, good Lord, Sidney, what am I to do?"

[illegible]

"I appropriated five thousand dollars that must be by now in your hands before nine this very day," and the speaker stopped and looked up and around the room. He clenched his way, and I could have taken it without telling any more lies about the mine; but, good Lord, Sidney, I didn't want to steal. I told him as straight a story as I could, and the questions he asked made me yield; the advice he offered turned me back. Said he could keep my position for me and get me a raise if I'd agree to buckle down a little harder. Heavens, doesn't he know I wasn't made to dig and grind like a station-hand? He wouldn't give me a cent of money, so I knew what I had to do. I hid out till I was sure the house was dead asleep. I planned it to look like a clever burglary, intending to come back while the excitement was up and be as quick as "I believed I'd do the best to carry it through. When spring comes a hen in the race he can do things himself, and it'll be as if the old man were a 100. I'll do it would be making good the best what is lying idle. I'll do a woman's life with a brother."

Mechanically, Faren wrote a page, folded and inclosed it without recording, addressing it to his betrothed: "You are mighty good, Sid," faltered the other, watching him eagerly.

"Something like the crow that washed!" laughed Faron oddly, turning to the door. "Better turn off the light and go outside," he added. "I'll be with you in a jiffy." He opened the door with a startled exclamation. He was face to face with Hope Farrow.

"Please wait, Sidney," she said quietly, shutting the door and standing with her back against it. "I am late at the conference, but having listened at the door, it will not be necessary to rehearse the matter. I just want a voice in what concerns me—there is all."

Embarrassed beyond speaking, the man stood staring at the white-faced girl, whose tumbled masses of pale dufted hair shone nimbus-like above her excited and bright eyes. So tall and slim she looked so appealing yet formidable in her insistence, that Faron's throat lightened at what was before him.

"Won't you sit down, Hope," he finally said with concern, pulling forward a chair.

"So you can go out that door," she smiled faintly. "No, I believe not. I'll stand - - and read my letter first. I'm curious to see how you Without looking at her brother, who was sitting miserably, she reached forth her hand and Eragon felt the envelope in it. There was intense silence after the scroll had been ripped open and cracked in its folds on the girl's palm. She read it slowly, biting her lip to keep back the sob that rose at her throat, faintly throwing up her head. "Brave," "Very nice and sentimental, Holmes," she murmured. "As a man sows, and so forth, but I'd like to know who decreed that his promised wife should reap the whiffling!"

"What are you not to say and think?"

"Don't let me hear you heard every word you and Carl said," And you think you were the only one prying about with a heavy heart. I can well understand Carl's troubles; but listen. Suppose that is all nonsense about you being responsible for his sins. Carl was twenty-one when you and he went away to make your fortunes, but five years younger than you. He looked the child, but really knew as much of the world as you did; and, anyway, Sidney, men of that age should be a law unto themselves. Whatever dreamers and sentimentalists may say. And now you—you who have worked like a dog for five self-denying years: who have gone shabby to send me presents: who have boarded at cheap restaurants to save for—was it to save for Carl, or me?"

"But, dear," the man insisted, gen-

"I do. Oh, I do!" she cried breaking into tears and turning her face into her banded arm against the door, "but you are leaving me forever without a spoken word; and Carl, to be sure my brother, but who has never denied himself one luxury or indulgence that his money or mine

"Don't, girlie," murmured Fa-on buskily, drawing her to his side, "if you only knew what this means!"

"Am I killed?" she asked, lifting her wet cheeks. "You cannot do anything unless you let me help you bear the sacrifice. Ouhua!" As he said and forced back a sudden cry with her upflung palm, straining her dark

"And you let him?" The old man's probing eyes blinked rapidly as he took in Hope's pallor, the strained attention of her eyes. "You agreed, in view of Carl's incapacity, and the hard knocks Faron has undergone to make a home for you, that it is best for him, a week before your marriage, to turn over his savings to such a financier, for any purpose whatever. Hone, I've been mistaken in you. Look here, if you allow this thing after I have been kept in the dark, and have refused to blindly sanction any more of Carl's loose dealings, I'll not own you for my brother's child. I thought you had some sense. I have been proud of you. How of your independence; your love of uprightness, and truth; but I'm done with you now. If you think you can still have a home with me, or that I will help you a penny after tonight, you're mistaken. You can leave my house in the eve-

The old man glared triumphantly at the white-faced trio, and with a last, queer, compelling look at his nephew, turned to leave the room. Then a sudden crash broke the awkward stillness as Carl gave, struggling out of the chair in which he crouched, overturned it with a bounding head.

A COLT FOR SALE

David was a most awkward beginner, but he grew in grace in the long grass, and his mother went back to hawking, and he fell into the hands of Jack, to be finished off for the market.

Exercising to tired in moderate

David responded to Jack's doing of his own youth, and I advertised him for sale by name, number, descent, as being sound, a good actor, twenty months, fifteen hundred and forty pounds, worth five hundred dollars—no more, no less.

There must be a market for some Percherons, for a sheet of answers came in. Most of them wanted me to trade him in, with a little boot, for a far better horse—usually a trotter. Some offered orchards.

David's first actual caller was an old man from Michigan. I shall never forget him. Does a girl ever forget her first beau, even if he doesn't propose?

I escorted him, just as pleasantly as I knew how, to David's box in the paddock—it was almost a miniature stable—which had been constructed to resemble the home of Santa King. Jack said it was the only proper car-

"Do you keep him in the coop now?" asked the old man. "Bad for him. Eyes, tendons, feet, temper and getting qualities. Pull him out in the sunsome. Mmm. He's shot. What for? Shoeing's a no-counted deal here on earth. What's the good of putting shoes on a baby like him, that ain't working?"

"When I was along of the back-shoes at Sir Wrenthorpe Blabbin's, sir, at Sains Hall."

"Huckneys? Were you a hackney jack?" distrustfully.

"Was I? Didn't I do Sarris King?"

"You will of heard tell of 'Im-goin' on high three years?"

"Hackneys and draft stock are about as much alike as lace and calico. That's why you put all

"To make dry footin' for 'em—same as we did for Harris King and his gal."

"Dry footin': dry feet. You want wet in the barn-yard to make hoofs spread," said the old man, taking a tape from his vest and measuring David below the knee. I don't know why it must have been telepathy—but I blushed as he stooped.

"Then he asked if I had any other stock to show, and started for the train. On the way I asked him to give me ideas for David, if he couldn't give me dollars.

"Sun and air and less funny business," said he, "and knowing your own horse better. Now, old Mack Dunham was the best Percheron salesman this country ever knew. But he couldn't buy—the horse was too good-natured and, queer enough, he had the sense to know it. He always got a Minnesota man to buy for him. They made a fine team."

"What makes a horse-savvy?"

"What makes a pocket-player? Why do you rather buy the same pair of shoes for the same money off one clerk than another? It's something born."

"Why exactly am I such a rotten salesman?" For I know that fifteen hundred and forty is a good weight for a twenty-month colt."

"Well, it would be a good weight."

I blushed again, and I must have

"Jack," said I, that evening, "let's please weigh the toll—just for greens." I added philosophically, (business of resistance by Jack), (business of possession by me), (business of taking credit to neighbor's scales and weighing him).

Ego: "Forteen-thirty."

Jack (calmly): "Is that it, sir?"

Ego (stern): "Yes, fourteen-thirty."

Jack: "With supreme greens?"

Ego: "No. Fifteen-forty."

Jack: "The scales must 'a' been froze, sir. I'm a mind 'twas a red

Joe: "What'd you do for me, Jack?"
You worked hard to get the day to me."

Jack: "I thought you'd have more of other drinks to take you. And, you didn't take that out of a sister's legs.
I need a little money for life."

Joe: "Whose what are you talking about?"

Jack: "I'm talking about the other girls in the show. You didn't humble the show the way you said.
We had a close, in one night, and a concert film by Steve Krop on the Music Hall, and in the Crystal Ballroom show and we put art & out of whisky near her neck just before she went into the ring. I was aboard the judges' stand when it was taken out and I saw it go to the ground. I saw the whisky bottle go to the ground. I saw the whisky bottle go to the ground.

They plumped the butt on him, after she had a bit of a tussle with another filly, as had been shot full of dope out a week. I knowed their tricks. I never dope a loss myself, Sir, very seldom. An' an hour later they poured us out again, and so we had to slip another measure of whisky over the filly's nose, and blessed if she didn't come into the pink stagerane. 'Yer filly's drunk,' says the jockey to the marester, 'take 'er out.' An' there he put and sent. An' Sir Warradale didn't bust down an' cry. That time I ever seen a gentleman

A stock-kn from Iowa came to take a look at David.

"Has any foreigner," I confessed,

"No," I guessed it. "What's he shed for and clipped?"

It was a little peckish about the money by this time but he explained the clipping. "Account of the how." "How's I going to know how many father has got on his legs if he's clipped?" And that's half of where the Patterson has it on the Clyde.

His brother to a foreigner and give him the grass," expounded Iowa. "I only dropped out to see if maybe you had a bargain. Fifteen forty at twenty months sounded good."

"But how," I queried, "can the Pellean people get all these collars registered in the book?"

"Oh, there's as much politics in Percheron as in Washington. Good-by." And David was still a wallflower.

A horse-dealer wrote he'd help me make the sale to a close personal friend of his for a secret rebate of fifty dollars. I wasn't quite sure whether it was doubtful ethics, but David was selling very nicely, so I telephoned him in hurry.

The two came, looked over the colt, nodded no, and departed. I was amazed at this last fall-down and consulted the story to Jack.

Harshur explained, saying that was both horsemen in together and that was their little way of getting fifty dollars off the price, and even when said the colt Harshur then, boss me art, but that is 5 off one."

"Jack," said I, "we'll make a work

"Oh, yes," he exclaimed, Jack

"this yearlin' bloom?"

"Bloom?"

"Oh, yuss. A 'oss bloomin' like a tree. Their 'ides get whinn' and soft, munnat like silk, and they 'ave a clean odor to them. I can make a 'oss bloom any time I like."

"How?"

"By 'chunin' the amount o' arsenicin I gives in the winter, and fluskin' on arsenic."

"It doesn't hurt them?"

"'Hut 'em? Hah. Excuse me, sir. It does 'em good. Now, sir Winge."

He, he, he, he left me a letter orders that his estate is to bloom, just at settlement time say April. Lucky fourth is the same, sir!"

"After his death in April?" I said.

I have seen pictures in magazines of a sixteen-hundred-dollar fur coat, of an undecorated, gold-streaked with parrot-bird Honduras, which George Ade brought in the "Sultan of Siam." His is the only way to turn, unless you turn over your own furrows.

And I have come to feel that I, too, have a message to deliver in dramatic aspect. I have already selected the name for this year's subject.

...the same for this year's purchase. It is Abraham L. Erlanger. But the other 737 fellows are getting onto my schemes. The man we have has named his Barred ... that got second as a cockerel ...

A black and white photograph of a woman in a long, light-colored dress and a wide-brimmed hat with a veil, standing in a room with a large, dark, textured object (possibly a tree or sculpture) in the background. The image is framed by a thick black border.

The image consists of two separate black and white photographs. The photograph on the left depicts a woman standing, facing slightly to the right but looking towards the camera. She is wearing a light-colored blouse with a dark, intricate pattern and a dark, knee-length skirt. Her hair is styled in an updo. The photograph on the right shows a woman standing, facing forward. She is wearing a long, dark dress with a light-colored pattern and a very large, dark hat with a wide brim. The background of both photos is a plain, light-colored wall.

The Tailor -
Fulfills Every Requirement for Dressing

and as the bit of neck-prettiness is exceedingly perishable and may not be trusted to the hands of a laundress, it will be wiser that modern neckties have into a pretty young, the Paris frocks for a storm, will have these lovely plaited grillages at the neck but it is not likely that this form of necktrimming will last very long after winter costs, and especially after furs are done for anything worth over the airy net frills crushes them past possibility of wear.

Bouffant Collars And Jabot Combine To Increase the Appearance Size Of The Neck.

Incorporated in the new neckwear in company with the fashionable net or very sheer handkerchief lawn or batiste. Illustrated, is a most graceful finish of net and machine embroidery, attached to an embroidery collar. Strips of the fine embroidery turn back from the inner edges of the fichu and a frill of val lace finishes the outer edges and the smartly shaped little collar which stands up behind the neck to give the thickened line at the top of the bodice.

The collar of smotherware was the pleated drill of heaped heloise is intended for use with summer frocks of lawn, muslin, sponge or dimity; or it may be donned over an afternoon frock of charmeuse or landsdowne having one of the simply-cut, much-bloused bodices of the moment. This collar is creamy in tint rather than pure white and would look well with a charmeuse gown in gray or taupe color, worn with white silk gloves, black hat and black boots with buttoned tops of suede matching the frock.

Tailored coats call for waistcoats which show in the cutaway front opening. Sometimes these waistcoats are of silk brocade, sometimes of white cottons and pockets and the smartest waistcoats extend below the belt line in pointed tabs. Other so-called waistcoats are of shirred net, attached to net foundations; the inevitably pleated net frill rising at the back of the neck and running down the front, which cross over the bust.

The country woman remembers that there is a difference of several degrees in temperature and humidity between the country of shore resort from which she comes and the city and town at mid-day. And dresses accordingly. The wool tailored suit may be all very well in the crispness of mountain air, but on Fifth Avenue three hours later it will be necessary more likely to carry the cost of that suit over one's arm, or sweater in unbearable discomfort while one shops. Some women can be cool and serene in wool tailors with an mercury 84 in the air, but the fashionable city woman, who perspires and who must run any track of mile and who has to fan frantically every instant to keep her face from becoming purple. The most desirable costume for a city woman for the day is a sturdy, well-silk stock, short enough in the skirt for comfortable walking without using one hand to hold up the drapery and of a color dark enough to give a semi-formal look to its wearer. Silk is the best material for the day dress, because of its lowdown, harmonious, and masculine silk and the favor to color is, beyond peradventure, navy blue. Many of the smartest women wear blue blue silk of lowdown dimensions in those little shopping expeditions to the hat worn with such a dress being almost invariably black with girlish neck ties and long pieces of embroidered lace giving the shyness to such

There's something about the "unbuttoned" look that's coming back. It's that original, old-timey, throw-on-a-shirt waist style, where the top two or three shirt waist buttons were not the norm. Shirtwaists were harshly torn from the fashions of the 1920s. Over a few years, a more relaxed shirt tail revealed the top of a rounded waistline, but for a much-loved, casual, loose and informal look at the shoulders and waist, it was a suggestion about the relaxed, loose and easy-dropping shoulder line that was the key. It was a departure from the sleek, body-wide, soft and draped in the V-d fold of the late 1950s to the use of a round and soft, draped, buttoned shirt or shirttail. One thing is certain: there are more ways than ever to wear silk. It's not just for the formal, but for the informal. It's a shame just now that the top of a shirt is not so smart. Indeed,

Buttoned Boots For Town.
The woman who dropped her jacket over her head slipped behind her in the country and went into town a few days with a pair of buttoned walking boots which had sent to her silk stock in the mail suit. The buttoned boots are also made for foot better in the days and in some of them suit of work and in the day during the time of buying. Patent leather boots in the top of the shoe are now most fashionable with tailored suits and trouser frocks of silk. White Boots though very correct with country club and yachting costumes, are not worn on city pavements now by women who dress in best taste.

In the case of long sent on ahead by parcels post or express will be tucked a pair of buckled, slippers of buttoned satin oxfords for wear with the evening gown, and also the theater bag with its daintier style that accords with the evening wrap.

Combining Day and Evening Costume.

If it is not practicable to "carry along an extra gown for dinner and theater wear," some sort of a compromise must be effected with the gown worn into town of a morning; for no dainty woman cares to sit through the evening in exactly the same wearables in which she started out at seven or eight of a morning—in mid-summer weather. Marvels may be wrought, however, with a few things carried in a handbag, and first and foremost in the furnishing up of the dress frock for dinner, morning, and tea, will be the modest fichu or neckerchief with pointed frills and undulating Marie Stuart collars at the back may be had for a couple of dollars and one of these graceful fichus will entirely change the appearance of the dark street gown. The capable little woman who spends her summers on the Jersey coast will prefer to wear during the mid week to "look around" the shops and the Ritz, take in a matinee and dine with the husband who can get away to the shore only at week-end; has the question of wardrobe down to a fine point. Her going to town frock is of black crepe de chine and is simply made, with a draped skirt and a beaded bodice pocket in surprise fashion at the waist. Something in the manner, she wears the widest of bodices, a deep collar of creamy machine embroidery edged with net, and a string of white coral beads. White silk gloves and a neatly drawn chin veil of black dotted tulle complete a very dainty shopping and luncheon costume. Just before the dinner hour she repairs to the pay-dressing room at the railroad station, removes her shoes and bathes neck and arms in hot water to which a dash of rose water from a small bottle carried in her hand bag is added. Hair done over, manure being attended to and a touch of powder whiskered over her fresh bathed face, she feels a different woman. Next, the shields, attached inside her bodice with small safety pins, are removed and fresh ones substituted—which makes the bodice feel also cool and different. Instead of the cream embroidery collar of the morning—now somewhat soiled and faded—a net fichu with a pleated trim is slipped on and pinned in place before the surplice black bodice is donned. A string of amber beads replaces the white coral string of the morning; out of the hand-bag comes a big, soft pale yellow rose, which is securely pinned to the black, full-trimmed hat, the face veil being folded and tucked back into the bag. The white silk gloves are rolled up compactly and tucked in with the veil and in their place are donned long, silken gloves of palest buff with the pretty Niagara Maid embroideries on the wrist. The soiled shields are thrown away, the fresh ones having been purchased during the day; and presto, my lady emerges ready for dinner, with nothing to show for so complete a toilet except her well-supplied little wrist-bag of pin seal.

Soft Blouses Of The Moment Fit In A Hand-bag.

The silk blouse, worn with a tailored suit may be changed in like manner for a dressy blouse of lace, before dinner, and the modern blouses are so delicate and airy in character that they may easily be folded into a hand-bag without harm. Such a blouse has been donned with the tailor-tailored serge illustrated. The little tailored costumes in light or bright colors, of which there are being unlined throughout and fastening loosely with one button at the waistline.

Evening Gowns And Wraps May Be Packed In A Satchel.

If there is a special festivity "tonight" and it is considered desirable for any reason to attend restaurant or theater in evening costume, such a costume, as has been suggested, may be sent to the hotel ahead, in a suit case. The dinner gown pictured, could not possibly be injured by such treatment. If it is of printed chiffon over a lace trimmed skirt and the soft girdle sash is of tulle and ribbon. The draped lace of the bodice forms a loose sleeve and falls softly at the back to mingle with the little train. A cluster of silk ribbons matching the printing in the chiffon is caught against the corage. Such a gown—all in one piece and easy to slip into, could easily be packed in a traveling bag. The evening wrap is equally soft and manageable. It is a new model of green and black brocade with a cape of silver lace falling from a rhashie collar—the very latest wrap-made in Paris.

Women who come into town in motor cars often wear dinner costumes, covered during the day by long, light dust coats. A touring car, of course, takes a thirty-to-fifty mile run into town in an hour or so, and very elaborate dinner costumes are possible in such case, even though one starts from the wilds of the country.

Typical is the handsome dinner costume, worn the other night at the Ritz. Over a trailing skirt of black andwands, long enough to cover entirely dainty buttoned strap slippers of black satin, falls a coat of green and black brocade, girded with a black satin sash, tied at the front. A second drape of creamy lace relieves the upper part of the coat and a black tulle ruche with long ribbon ties matches a smart black tulle-trimmed hat. The embroidered silk gloves are creamy in tone like the lace jabot.

TO CLEAN SPRING MATTRESSES.
SPRING mattresses which have become rusty can be cleaned in the following manner: Make a paste of whitening, water and a few drops of ammonia. Apply this to the springs with a hand-brush and allow it to dry. Wash off with a stiff brush and polish. Finally powdered bath brick mixed with paraffin will answer the same purpose.

A Delaney Signature Of N

child, dressing in the tulle makes the girl stand up smartly behind the neck; but alas! this dainty crispness is very unbecoming, and a humble, sultry adoration will usually succeed once and for all, leaving it in a crumpled, hopeless string by the time the bodies are removed.

These pretty pleated frills running around the back of the neck and down each side of the bodice front, with softly drawn back folds of net crossing in a deep V over the bosom, give an adorably sweet and feminine look to the plainest face—and they mercifully disguise age marks on the neck, below the ears, also. A string of pearls or white coral beads, preferably the latter, finishes the effect; and the modest string of beads now falls in a deep loop corresponding with the deep V of the neck opening, rather than merely encircling the throat as did the lead string of last season.

When desired, the folds of tulle forming the arch between the bodice fronts may be pinned higher at the neck; or a dainty frilled jabot may be added to give a higher-necked effect. Such a jabot—one of the new models of a net—is pictured on two narrow frills, shown on a narrow band, and Marie Stuart collar now is a fashionable, and below fall two like ends of net edged all around with net frilling to match the standard collar. The frills are attached to the plain net with hemstitching, and the whole effect is very dainty and airy. Such a jabot costs from two dollars to five dollars, and worksmanship, of quality of material and workmanship,

Collar and Jabot Combine To Increase the Apparent Size Of The Neck.

Incorporated in the new neckwear in company with the fashionable net, or very sheer handkerchief lawn, or batiste. Illustrated, is a most successful schu of net and machine embroidery, attached to an embroidery collar, strips of the fine embroidery turn back from the inner edges of the fichu and a frill of val lace finishes the outer edges and the smartly shaped little collar which stands up behind the neck to give the thickened line at the top of the bodice.

The collar of embroidery with a pleated frill of hemmed batiste is intended for wear with summer frocks of linen, sponge or dimity; or it may be donned over an afternoon frock of tulle or of laces, having one of the simply-cut, much-bloused bodices of the moment. This collar is creamy in tint rather than pure white and would look well with a chamois green in gray or taupe color, worn with white silk gloves, black hat and black shoes with buttoned tops of shoes.

Tailored coats call for waistcoats which show in the cutaway front opening. Sometimes these waistcoats are of silk brocade, embellished with buttons and pockets and the smartest waistcoats extend below the belt line in pointed tabs. Other so-called waistcoats are of shirred net, attached to net foundations; the invariably pleated net frill rising at the back of the neck and running down the front, which cross over the bust.
